Here are her picks this week, honoring Holocaust Remembrance Day and Cinco de Mayo.

PS: all of her (great) recommendations can be found in our Marie's Reads highlight!
ANNE FRANK'S DIARY: THE GRAPHIC ADAPTATION

This graphic novel is based on the classic original, and the only graphic novel on Ms. Frank's life approved by the Anne Frank Foundation. Expressive art and excerpts from the original diary ensure that the light of Ms. Frank's legacy will live on for generations to come.
Told through the eyes of a street urchin, this is an intense story of survival and hope against all odds amidst Nazi occupied Poland, during which at least a quarter of the population perished.
What are some of the core experiences that shape our existence? In this groundbreaking, unforgettable memoir, Takei lays bare his life behind the fence of an Japanese-American internment camp in the U.S. at the height of World War II. A timely, must read.
What is more important - life or freedom? Set in what seems now as the not-so-distant future, Layla is a Muslima who is forced into an internment camp with her family. Imperfect, yet packs a punch - definitely worth a read.
If you can't be you, who will? Follow Juliet in this hilarious, serious, and powerful cry in the wilderness of being for acceptance. Love is love. Point, blank, period.
Want to hear Marie's picks in real time? She's here LIVE every Wednesday!